Student Welfare Cell Report: Academic Year 2022-23

In the academic year 2022-23, the Student Welfare Cell focused on recognizing students who showed exceptional dedication by undergoing extra MOOC (Massive Open Online Course) certifications. The welfare fund was established to reward these students for their commitment to enhancing their skills beyond the standard academic curriculum.

A thorough review was conducted across departments to identify 69 students who successfully completed various MOOC courses. These students were acknowledged for their outstanding achievements in acquiring additional certifications. The decision was made to disburse the welfare fund based on the NPTEL exam fee of 1000 per student. The initially sanctioned amount was 69,000, reflecting the Cell's commitment to supporting and appreciating students' commitment to continuous learning. During the final verification process, it was discovered that two students were mistakenly included in the list of recipients. This error was promptly rectified, and the fund was reimbursed for the two students who were not intended to be part of the disbursement. As a result, the final disbursed amount was accurately adjusted to 67,000, and this amount was distributed among the 67 deserving students who had successfully completed extra MOOC course certifications.

This initiative aims to encourage students to actively engage in skill enhancement activities, fostering a culture of lifelong learning within the academic community. The Student Welfare Cell remains committed to promoting the overall well-being and development of students, both academically and beyond. The attached list provides details of the students who received the welfare fund, including their names, departments, and the MOOC courses they completed.

A few snaps of the fund disbursements in the departments have been included as follows.
